Stochastic Simulations

- The outcome is determined when the math is the same, the model is static, adding sources of variation at various places in model and allowing to propagate and influence your models

Randomness

- There is no true randomness, only pseudo-random generation